

A sense of justice

Where to start: Children at this age have a keen sense of what is fair, and they are beginning to be able to apply it to what they see happening in the world around them. Start with a conversation about fairness. Rather than defining "fair," first ask what they think it means.

Prompt : Describe a time that you experienced or observed something unfair. Why was it unfair?

How to go deeper: In the example you just wrote about, what did you do? Would you do the same thing again, or is there something you would do differently next time? (Use the back of this page to write.)

Great!
