
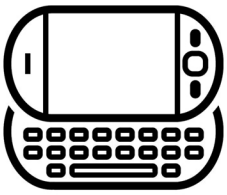
Can't live without it



Where to start: This exercise is about giving logical reasons for an opinion. Start with a conversation about different devices, such as phones, computers, video games, etc. What are each of these devices good and not-so-good for?

Prompt: If you could have just one electronic device, what would it be? Why?

How to go deeper: Imagine you could design your own device. What would it do? (Use the back of this page to write.)
