

Toy story

Where to start: In this prompt, kids get to exercise their imaginative and descriptive writing skills. Start with a conversation about books or movies where toys come to life. If their toys came to life, what silly things might they do? How would they get around in the human world?

Prompt: Imagine there's a kickball game and it's dolls vs. stuffed animals. (Or robots vs. monsters, or any other toys you can think of.) Which team would win? Why?

How to go deeper: Draw an all-star team with all different kinds of toys. What advantages do toys with wheels have? How about with wings? (Use the back of this page to draw.)
