

Character flaw

Name a fictional character whom you can't stand. What about that character bugs you? How do other characters in the book, TV show, or movie respond to that person?

Keep in mind: Characters are created by writers to evoke certain feelings and provoke certain situations. Do you think this character is a success because the writer intended that they drive you crazy? Or is the character a failure because you're supposed to find them likeable?

Bonus: If the writer asked for your advice on how to make the character more likeable, how would you recommend that their personality change? (Use the back of this page to write.)